Jap Torch Killing Of Yanks Flayed

By JOHN A. REICHMANN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (INS)—A long list of Japanese atrocities, including the brutal massacre of 150 American war prisoners in the Philippines was cited by the State Dept. today in an indictment of Japan's failure to observe the Geneva convention.

Brookline Flier Listed Dead Is Alive

CHESHAM, N. H., Sept. 5 (AP)—It was just a brief newspaper story but it turned the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Richard S. Eustis, of a Crafts rd., Brookline, Mass., from a house of gloom into one of great joy—their son is alive.

Wm. R. Eustis "Killed in action."

It was over Truk last January that Lt. Eustis' fighter plane went down.

Saturday, Dr. Eustis said, he read a short newspaper story that told of the liberation of a Lt. William R. Eustis of Chestnut Hill, Miss.

Hopeful the proper address should have been "Chestnut Hill, Mass.," a part of Brookline, Dr. Eustis telephoned the War Department and was told it really was his own son from Massachusetts.

"We are still in a daze," the exuberant doctor said today. "We had read about such things. We often thought it could happen to others but not to us. But it's happened. Our son is alive."

The newspaper story said Lt. Eustis had been mistreated by the Japanese and that his weight had dropped from 145 to 85 pounds.

Lt. Eustis is 23 years old. He has been in the service two and one-half years. He has a brother, Lt. Richard F., Jr., with the Air Transport Command, and a sister, Mrs. George B. D. Hill of Boston.

HEADED JAPS WORST CAMP—Scowling Lt. Kakuo Sida, commander of the Ofuna prison camp near Yokohama, is being held by American troops after prisoners reported that the camp was the worst run of any in Japan.

Indian Troops In Singapore

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

SINGAPORE, Sept. 5 (AP)—Indian troops landed at Singapore today and began occupation of this one-time bastion of the British Empire which was surrendered to the Japanese Feb. 15, 1942.

The Japanese, in apparent violation of surrender terms, had set fire to the oil tank farm at Port Dickson.

Prisoners in a camp near the quay pressed against the wire and roared in the trees, cheering their liberators.

The department disclosed it made approximately 240 protests on the war crimes which ranged from malnutrition among war prisoners, the denial of inspection of war prisoner camps and lack of medical attention to outright murder.

A note of the "barbaric behavior" of enemy troops in the slaughtering of the 150 Americans reminded the Japanese government that it could not escape responsibility for the crime, and demanded that "appropriate punishment" be inflicted on all who directed or participated in it.

The Americans were forced into air raid tunnels at Puerto Princessa on the island of Palawan last Dec. 14 on the pretense of an air raid.

Gasoline was poured into the shelters and touched off with blazing torches. The victims, enveloped in flames and screaming in agony, swarmed out only to be mowed down by machine gun fire or bayoneted. Many were buried alive.

The massacre was disclosed early this year by prisoners who escaped the murder party.

The Department explained that today's 15,000-word summary of protests to the Japanese was only a part of those which had been made during the war.

For the most part, the Department explained, the protests had not been made public in the hope that arrangements could be made for the proper treatment of war prisoners and civilian internees held by the Japs.

Revelation of the many atrocities, naming many Japanese war criminals, was expected to result in a determined effort by war criminals to escape into hiding before they can be captured for trial.

One note protested the decapitation of an American airman who was captured in New Guinea on March 23, 1944.

The airman had been forced down at sea near Altape, New Guinea. The Japs captured him early in the morning of March 23. They bound his hands and beat him with sticks from that morning until mid-afternoon of the following day. Then a civilian named Inouye decapitated him with six

Pearl Harbor Inquiry Now Seen Certain

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (INS)—The drive for a Congressional investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster was under full steam today.

Following a White House conference with President Truman, House Speaker Sam Rayburn said that he was certain there would be "some more made about it."

Rayburn was believed to be referring to the pending resolution calling for the congressional inquiry.

At the same time the Republican steering committee announced its support to the demands for the investigation.

Rayburn said President Truman had "indicated his position" on the Pearl Harbor matter at a White House conference today.

Sen. Ferguson (R.) of Michigan and Rep. Harness (R.) of Indiana, will introduce joint resolutions calling for a Senate and House investigation. The Ferguson-Harness proposal would set up a 14 man committee, seven from the House and seven from the Senate.

Rayburn told reporters the attitude in Congress on Pearl Harbor was "bad" and added: "I wish we could forget Pearl Harbor but I guess we can't."

Four-Star Rank For Wainwright

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—President Truman today nominated Lt. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, recently liberated from the Japanese, for promotion to the rank of four-star general.

Chinese 6th Army Flying to Nanking

CHIHKIANG, Sept. 5 (AP)—The mass airborne movement of the new Chinese Sixth Army to Nanking, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's pre-war capital, began today.

last February, will enter the bomb-shattered capital city then, Gen. MacArthur is expected to move his headquarters from Yokohama to the United States embassy building in Tokyo about the same time.

The supreme commander of the Allied powers announced plans for the First Cavalry movement today shortly after he issued a far-reaching directive which drove home to the full the impact of defeat on Japan.

The directive demanded forthwith all information—including codes—necessary for swiftly disarming Japan's war machine, and ordered the beaten nation to place vast facilities at the beck and call of steadily enlarging occupation forces.

Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, whose Eighth Army will occupy Honshu north of Yokohama, and all Hokkaido Island, said all Japanese troops will be disarmed by Oct. 10.

In his area, which embraces Tokyo, Eichelberger expects to have eight and two-thirds combat divisions (more than 130,000 troops) by that date. He estimated the initial occupation of Japan's four islands would require between 300,000 and 400,000 troops.

Occupational strength equal to that of Eichelberger's Eighth will be concentrated on South Honshu and the southern islands of Shikoku and Kyushu by Gen. Walter C. Krueger's Sixth Army.

Elements of his 32nd Division landed from ships and air transports yesterday at the south end of Kyushu, taking over Kanoya Airfield and a strip of Kagoshima Bay.

The southern half of Korea is to be occupied by yet another American force.

The U. S. 27th Division, which took part in the invasion of Okinawa, was scheduled to move into the Yokohama area tomorrow to share occupational duties with the 11th Airborne and First Cavalry Divisions. The 11th Airborne made the initial landing more than a week ago at Atsugi Airfield.

LEON BLUM IN LONDON LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Leon Blum, former Socialist premier of France, arrived in London today. Associates described the visit as "mainly for a rest and to meet some old friends."

Japs Told Defeat Truth

By RUSSELL BRINES

TOKYO, Sept. 5 (AP)—Premier Naruhiko Higashi-Kuni bluntly told the Japanese Diet today that "enormous" military losses and "impoverishment" and exhaustion at home had forced Japan to surrender.

Speaking separately before the houses of peers and representatives, the premier said Japan had been cut off from her overseas empire and was unable to replenish war losses, while her cities were systematically destroyed by bombing.

The premier said that American aerial attacks burned 2,200,000 homes, killed or wounded "hundreds of thousands" of persons and that 10,000,000 were "war sufferers" in one form or another.

The blockade was so chokingly drawn by Allied air power, his speech conceded, that "even communications with the China continent were rendered extremely hazardous."

"Especially after the loss of the Mariana Islands the advance of the Allied forces became progressively rapid," the premier said, "while air raids on Japan proper were intensified."

"Production of military supplies, seriously affected by curtailment of marine transportation was dealt a severe blow."

Finally, he reported, "the country's production dwindled to such a point that any swift restoration came to be considered beyond hope."

Among other problems, he said, was the shortage of salt, customarily imported, which left Japan without sodium for explosives.

"By May of this year, our carrying capacity by steamships had dwindled to about one-fourth of what we had at the beginning of the war."

"Moreover, scarcity of liquid fuel and interference by the enemy caused marked curtailment in the efficiency of shipping operations."

The nation's war resources, by May and June, this year, had been "disastrously undermined," he concluded, and "our losses in both naval and aerial strength were so enormous as to obstruct seriously the prosecution of the war."

On the other hand, he pointed out, Allied power "was ever on the increase."

Dumped upon a nation whose war-making power already had been "disastrously undermined," the atomic bomb—the last straw—was deemed "likely to result in obliteration of the Japanese people," Higashi-Kuni added.

"Moreover, the Soviet Union suddenly declared war... forcing us into the worst international situation."

It was Emperor Hirohito who decided, he said, "to save millions of his subjects."

Japan lost 51,109 airplanes during the war and has 15,896 left, a government spokesman told the Diet.

Another reported that 684 naval vessels had been sunk or damaged out of a total of 1217 of all categories.

WED AFTER JAP PRISON ROMANCE—Pretty Alice Zeigler, 22, of Cleveland, O., and her newly-acquired husband, John L. Black, 25, of Canada, leave St. Procopis Parish House in Cleveland after their wedding. The romance began across barbed wire fences in a Jap prison camp in the Philippines.

Fish Strike End Now Up to Cole

Failure of the regional War Labor Board to settle the dispute between fishermen and owners which has tied up Boston's trawler fleet since Aug. 26 brought the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration back into the picture today.

Gen. Cole, chairman of the state board, summoned representatives of the owners and the Atlantic Fishermen's Union to a meeting at the State House at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in a new effort to end the tieup resulting from the union demand for stand-by pay.

Cole's order came after Regional WLB Chairman Saul Wallen had announced it had failed to bring the Atlantic Fishermen's Union and the Federated Fishing Boats of New England and New York, Inc., any nearer to an agreement.

The entire Boston trawler fleet of 35 vessels has been tied up by the dispute, throwing some 700 fishermen out of work.

Druggers and other fishing craft, however, are still operating and have not been affected.

Reports the tieup had caused a mass exodus of idle fishermen to Gloucester and New Bedford were denied in those ports today.

At Gloucester, it was learned some 20 Boston fishermen had visited the port late last week and inquired about the possibilities of obtaining work there.

They are told Gloucester was handling as much fish as possible at the present time and that there was no possibility of work there.

At New Bedford, port officials said that no Boston fishermen had appeared there. They said fishing fleets there were short-handed and that there were "sites" available for additional fishermen, but that thus far none had applied.

Wallen's announcement of the WLB failure to settle the difficulty in an advisory capacity came after the union had rejected a proposal from the owners, the nature of which was not made known.

Previously the owners had proposed that the union permit the trawlers to sail pending arbitration and the union countered with an agreement to permit 34 trawlers to sail, but insisted the Medford, whose crew started the dispute with a demand for standby pay while she was being repaired, should remain idle until the difficulty was adjusted.

The owners rejected this counter proposal last week.

Siamese Twins Shown to Mother

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 5 (AP)—The mother of Arizona's Siamese twins saw them last night for the first time since their birth.

The twins, Louise and Micaela Miranda, had gained five ounces within a short time before the visit of their mother, Mrs. Rita Miranda, at St. Monica's Hospital.

Tears filled her eyes as she viewed the conjoined bodies of the infant girls. Then she said in Spanish:

"They look very pretty." Later she told her husband she would be glad to see them "when they are bigger and can walk."

That they might some day be able to walk still was within the hopes of attending physicians, who are considering the possibility of successful severance of the girls.

A blaze which threatened to destroy the altar of Wellesley Congregational Church, Wellesley sq., was quickly extinguished today after an unidentified passerby sounded an alarm.

Tobin Names Five To Port Authority

Nominations of five Massachusetts men were submitted to the executive council today by Gov. Tobin as members of the new Boston Port Authority, created in the Port of Boston bill passed last July by the Legislature. The appointments, on which the council will act at its next regular meeting Sept. 19, represent a cross-section of business, labor, industry and the civic life of the State.

They are:

LORUS U. EDGEHILL of Wellesley Hills, vice-president of the wool firm of Munroe, Kincaid and Edgell, of Melcher st., South Boston.

HENRY J. NICHOLS, Beacon st., Boston, executive vice-president of the National Shawmut Bank and former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

JOHN J. DELMONTE, Boylston st., Brookline, president of the Boston Central Labor Union and a former vice-president of the State Federation of Labor.

JOHN F. FITZGERALD, head of the existing Port Authority and former mayor of Boston.

JUDGE JAMES R. NOLEN, South Hadley Falls, presiding justice of the Eastern Hampshire District Court and a brother of State Sen. William E. Nolen, of Holyoke.

The new Port Authority was empowered by the last Legislature to expend up to $5,000,000 on improvement of the Port of Boston, with repairing of piers and the building up of freight and transportation facilities the primary objective.

Under the terms of the Port Bill subsequent appropriations of an additional $10,000,000 are authorized, but these are subject to approval by the 1946 session of the Legislature.

Both Fitzgerald and Nichols were ardent advocates of immediate development of the port when the matter was before the Legislature earlier in the year.

Delmonte will represent labor's stake in the postwar development of the port, while the interests of Boston as the world's wool center will be represented by Edgell.

Judge Nolen has served as counsel for many large manufacturing and importing concerns in the State and is familiar with the operations of the port.

The Governor also submitted to the council the appointment of Judge Richard M. Walsh of the Dorchester District Court to the superior court, succeeding Judge Frederick B. Greenhalge, of Lowell, who has retired.

Missing Since July, Frantic Parents Beg Boy to Return

After exhausting all other aid, Mr. and Mrs. William Marsinelli of Beech st., Everett, today appealed through this newspaper for help in finding their 12-year-old son, Herbert, whose disappearance last July 3 climaxed a children's picnic with tragedy.

Herbert and his sister, Joan, 10, and his three brothers, William, 8, Robert, 7, and Richard, 3, were granted permission to take a lunch to Pine Banks on the Malden-Melrose line.

After playing all day, the youngest, Richard, disappeared. Herbert put the other children on the bus telling them to return home and saying he would never leave until he had found "Dickie."

At midnight Herbert was still missing, but the Melrose police had found "Dickie."

Both the Melrose and Everett police have been trying to find him ever since. He's an exceptionally bright boy, according to his teachers, who "could talk his way into the White House." Brown-haired, dark-eyed, he's 4 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 65 pounds and was wearing blue dungarees and white sweat shirt with middle color when last seen.

Susan Peters in Wheel Chair Acts Again

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5 (AP)—Susan Peters, the plucky girl who refused to die, went back to the job of acting last night.

The actress appeared in a radio drama with Van Johnson. It was her first work since an accidental gun wound paralyzed her legs last New Year's day.

"Gee, I'm scared," she confided when she arrived at the radio station. "I've only done two broadcasts before."

Despite her trepidation she went through a flawless rehearsal and performance.

Susan, whose doctors once doubted that she would survive the accident, looked trim in a black and yellow slacks outfit and braided hair. She was carried from her car by her actor-husband, Coast Guardsman Richard Quinlan, to a wheel chair from which she broadcast.

"I can take about eight steps now," she said proudly. "What about the future? More radio?"

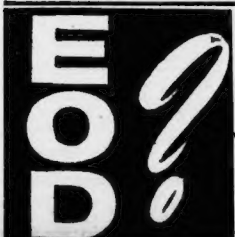

"I think I'll wait and see if they like me after this broadcast."

"The movies?"

"I'm afraid it will be a long time before I get back to pictures."

Baruch Offers 7-Point Plan to Aid Veterans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch said today the "human side of demobilization is being neglected tragically." He asserted returning soldiers and sailors must be reintegrated into their communities "socially, economically and humanly."

Strikes Hold Up '46 Car Models

DETROIT, Sept. 5 (INS)—Strikes hampered the automobile industry today and Ford spokesmen announced an indefinite postponement of public showings of the 1946 Ford car.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 employees at Ford plants are scheduled to be laid off Monday, the spokesmen added.

At Hudson Motors, production of the 1946 model was at a standstill and Detroit's reconversion upset was being felt in other parts of the nation.

Ford plants in Edgewater, N. J., Louisville, Ky., and Dallas, Tex., closed Tuesday; plants in Buffalo, where car production began today, Chester, Pa., and Richmond, Cal., will shut down next week if conditions do not change, spokesmen said.

Free Mother of 2 On Hubby's Plea

Reconciled with his wife after charging her with abandonment of their two children while he was overseas with the Navy, Robert Meagher of Jamaica Plain in Suffolk Superior Court today appealed to Judge John E. Swift to free her despite her plea of guilty.

The ex-sailor told Judge Swift "everything has been patched up and we're living together again."

Mrs. Eugenia Meagher, 25, was permitted to withdraw her guilty plea and the case was dismissed.

3 Youths Arrested After Break, Chase

Three Fitchburg youths, arrested after an automobile chase through Arlington today, were charged with breaking and entering and theft of money and cigars from the Rawson Pharmacy, Broadway, Arlington.

The three, facing arraignment later today in East Cambridge District Court, are Stephen Zanghi, 18, of Summer st., Leo Marios, 18, of Walnut st., and a 16-year-old companion. They were arrested when Patrolman James Ryan and Timothy Hourihan spotted an automobile reported stolen in Fitchburg and gave chase.

SET'S RECORD—The nation's record for continuous soloing for wounded vets, confined to hospitals, is held by Virginia Bush, mezzo-soprano, of Detroit. She recently sang without stopping for 3½ hours in a Michigan hospital. She comes to Boston this fall in "The Girl From Nantucket."

Find Body of 2d Sailing Victim

WOODS HOLE, Sept. 5—The body of Mrs. Anne Squire Hayer, 27, of Waterbury, Vt., second of three victims of a week-end sailing disaster, was found today, floating in Vineyard Sound, a few miles northeast of Vineyard Haven Harbor.

The Dot III, a boat owned by the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, where the three victims were employed, found the body a short distance from the point where searchers yesterday located that of Raymond R. Halverson, 24, of Duluth, Minn.

Discovery of the second body intensified the hunt for the third victim, Halverson's attractive wife, Margaret, 23.

The trio apparently were drowned last Saturday while sailing to Edgartown.

Nip Navy Joy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (INS)—Navy Secretary Forrestal said today the Navy order permitting use of civilian clothes off duty would have to be postponed as a result of the drain on the civilian clothing supply. The order was issued Sunday.

"We thought everyone had at least one old suit in mothballs," Forrestal declared, "but it looks as though they all want new ones."

House Group Frames Bill To Encourage Enlistments

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Legislation intended to encourage enlistments in the regular Army was approved today by the House military committee.

It probably will come before the House for a vote next week. Generally, it contains these provisions:

Permits enlistments for two or three-year terms.

Enables men re-enlisting to obtain their mustering-out pay immediately without waiting for the new term to end.

Provides for 90-day furloughs home for men re-enlisting, the Army paying travel expenses of five cents per mile.

Extend benefits of the GI Bill of Rights to men re-enlisting, for

"One terrible danger of failure," Baruch said, in a report to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, new Veterans Administrator, "may be to set the veteran off from the rest of the nation, cherishing the grievance of having been wronged, at odds with fellow-Americans, his feelings an explosive fuel ready to be ignited by some future demagogues."

To correct the situation he said he found, Baruch proposed:

Immediate steps to provide jobs for all workers.

The medical and non-medical functions of the Veterans' Administration be separated and streamlined.

The G. I. Bill of Rights be liberalized.

Baruch summarized his recommendations in seven points:

"1—Name a vigorous, imaginative 'work director.'"

"2—A clean-cut division within the Veterans Agency between medical and non-medical matters.

"3—Name a small, fast-working, independent committee to make an impartial study of every aspect of veterans' medical care.

"4—Substantial increases in salaries and promotions of doctors, nurses and technicians in the new medical service and ample research facilities.

"5—Name a small, fast-working committee of impartial experts to review all the non-medical aspects of the Veterans Administration.

"6—Overhaul the so-called GI Bill of Rights, particularly in regard to loans.

"7—An incentive tax of 25 per cent less the normal rate be given veterans operating new business."

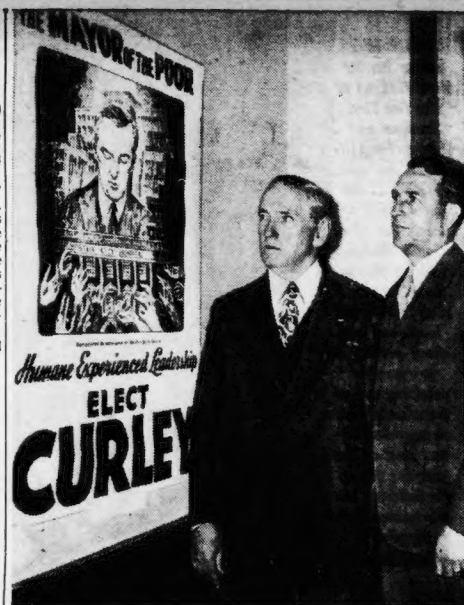

Protest Bus Line to Airport

Two rival organizations today voiced protest over the petition of the Sutcliffe Storage & Warehouse, Inc., to operate buses from the Hotel Statler to the Logan Airport, during hearing before William Curley, director of the bus division of the state public utilities commission. Kirley took the petition under advisement.

T. Gregory Sullivan, attorney for the petitioners, said the line had been approved by City of Boston authorities and the fare would be 75 cents.

Protesting were Willis B. Downey, representing the Boston Elevated, and Barrett Elkins of the Airways Transportation Co. The Elevated said it was ready to furnish such service at a 25-cent charge, but had been turned down by the city.

The Sutcliffe company explained the 75-cent fare would include limousine service in vehicles carrying eight passengers, while the Elevated service would be in regular passenger buses.

Jobs for Vets Basis Of Curley Campaign

Pledged to a program aimed to provide jobs for ex-servicemen and workers displaced by industrial reconversion, Cong. James M. Curley, thrice mayor of Boston and once-term governor of Massachusetts, today launched his campaign for a fourth mayoralty term.

Tanned and apparently robust, and with the characteristic Curley oratory as impressive as ever, he was accorded an ovation when he told 200 volunteer workers at his campaign headquarters in the Old State Building in Washington st., that he would win with a minimum of 120,000 votes.

Curley declared he "couldn't see any other candidate getting more than 50,000," adding that "some won't get 7500."

He pledged himself to a program designed to provide jobs for returning veterans and those displaced in industry by the war's end.

Sharply criticizing the delay by state and city governments in providing such programs, Curley asserted that building Boston and Massachusetts industrially and commercially are "emergency measures that demand priority over all other public programs."

He advocated rapid completion of the East Boston Airport, declaring that only a few score workers are being employed in its expansion while at least 2000 should be on the job.

Curley also advocated immediate construction of port facilities; a six-lane extension of the Newburyport Turnpike to the New Hampshire line and extension of the Worcester Turnpike to the Connecticut line, as aids to Boston business and commerce.

ROME, Sept. 5 (AP)—Jealous Italian youths seized two Italian girls from an American jeep last night and disrobed them, setting off a mob scene which was broken up by Allied military police who swung clubs and unleashed police dogs.

Preacher Wins Phone in Court

Seeking to overcome his landlady's objections to installation of a telephone in his apartment, Rev. Diwakar Shantwan Salvi, World War II veteran and native of Bombay, India, today sought an injunction in Middlesex Superior Civil Court restraining Mrs. Hettie Clark of Museum st., Somerville, from interfering with the telephone linemen.

Atty. Timothy J. McNerny, appearing for Rev. Salvi, said Mrs. Salvi was an expectant mother and the couple wanted the telephone for possible emergency. He told Judge Francis J. Good that Mrs. Clark refused to let the telephone men install the instrument.

Mrs. Clark's counsel, Atty. Raymond W. Guild, said she objected to the method of installation rather than the telephone itself and the dispute was settled by agreement. The injunction petition was dismissed and Rev. Salvi will get his telephone.

Kelly Bill Asks $900 Bonus, State Lottery

Former Lt. Gov. Kelly today filed a bill calling for a $900 bonus for honorably discharged Massachusetts servicemen to supplement what he described as the "niggardly $100" granted by the 1945 session of the Legislature.

The bill was recorded at the State House by Rep. Thomas Kelly, of Boston, in behalf of Kelly. The measure would be acted on at the 1946 legislative session. The bonus would be financed by a state lottery.

"The Republican-controlled Legislature this year threw out my proposed $1000 taxless bonus to veterans, which I pointed out could be paid by the proceeds from a state supervised lottery which the voters of Massachusetts have overwhelmingly approved, in favor of a $100 bonus," Kelly said. "This bonus will be paid by taxes imposed on the public, including veterans themselves and their families."

"At the same session, this same Legislature voted themselves $2500 compensation and travel expenses for a few days' work a few days a week for a few months of the year. They cowardly short-changed our servicemen and women at least $900."

"This new bill will give our elected public servants an opportunity to correct the injustices they perpetrated a few months ago on our protectors."

Special Session Asked To Rectify Bonus Law

J. Ralph Granara, legislative counsel of the Massachusetts Department, American Veterans of World War II, requested Gov. Tobin today to call a special one-day legislative session to rectify what he characterized as errors in the $100 veterans' bonus bill.

Granara in a letter to the Governor said his organization sought elimination of a clause requiring applicants to swear they have not been conscientious objectors; authorizing the State Treasurer to return discharge papers immediately, accepting photostatic copies of the papers, and allowing election officials and town clerks to issue certificates of residence.

Robert W. Coughlin of Springfield, a veteran of World War II, today was appointed by State Treasurer John E. Hurley to handle veterans' state bonus matters in western Massachusetts.

Film 'Scout' Gets Suspended Term

Sam Silverman, 30, of Chandler st., South End, was given a three-month suspended sentence in Municipal Court today along with a warning by Judge Tomasello that downtown streets are no place to seek talent for the movies and night club dance floors.

Silverman pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery on Ruth Donahue, 25, Vernon st., Brookline, Aug. 26. Norfolk pl. an alley in downtown Boston.

According to testimony by Sgt. John M. White of the Milk st. station, Silverman approached Miss Donahue announcing, "You're beautiful and I'm going to make a star out of you." When police intervened, according to White, the talent prospect was protesting as Silverman was illustrating how they kiss in the movies.

4 Dual War Brides Now Seek Way Out

Staggering personal problems faced four American girls today when dispatches from the Pacific reported their first husbands had been released from Japanese prisoner of war camps. All had received reports that their husbands had died in action, and all had remarried.

Latest to receive this bewildering news was a young Oakland, Cal., mother. A brief dispatch from Adm. Halsey's Third Fleet, now off Tokyo, informed Mrs. Laurie Cales Bernstein that Lt. James H. Cales, Jr., Navy flier shot down off Okinawa last Easter Sunday, had been found alive in a Japanese prison camp.

Official notice of Cales' death, accompanied by a "posthumous" Purple Heart award, reached the then Mrs. Cales last May. Two months later, two of Cales' fellow officers called at the Cales home and told the "widow" how her husband had gone down in flames. They left her his personal effects.

On July 9, Mrs. Cales was married to Lt. Eitan Peter Bernstein, a childhood sweetheart to whom she had once been engaged. The wedding took place shortly after he was released from the hospital after treatment for wounds received at St. Lo, France.

"There has been no official notice and we will make no statement until we have such notice," the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alloway, said today.

Mrs. Bernstein has a six-month-old son, James Cales, son of Lt. Cales, whom the rescued Navy flier has never seen.

Of the other remarried "widows," one, Mrs. Ann Birdwell-Marshall, 19, of Kansas City, today filed suit for annulment of her second marriage to Jack Marshall, 33, uncle of her first husband.

She said she would return to her first husband, Sgt. Gene D. Birdwell, 21, if he will have her.

Birdwell, reported killed in action in Burma, was rescued from a Japanese prison camp at Yokohama 12 days after his wife's second marriage.

Helen Goad of Portsmouth, O., who married Ensign Robert A. MacDowell of Saugerties, N. Y., after Lt. Harold Goad, bomber pilot, was declared dead, said her annulment had been "taken care of." Her first husband was found April 29 in a prison camp in Rangoon. He had been declared dead Oct. 14, 1944, and she remarried Dec. 15, 1944.

Mrs. Pearl Keiser of Williamsport, Pa., learned her first husband, Sgt. Earl Smith of Montgomery, Pa., had been heard in a shortwave broadcast from the Pacific. Smith was reported dead May 26, 1945, and she married Pvt. Hoyt H. Keiser, July 30, 1945.

Speed Veterans Quarters, Plea

Establishment of the Veterans' Administration headquarters at 17 Court st., Boston, "is essential and critical," declared Rep. John W. McCormack, House majority leader, today in urging the War Production Board regional office to expedite its removal from the building.

In a telegram to the WPB chairman, McCormack declared: "The occupancy of the premises at 17 Court st. by the Veterans' Administration is in the critical stage and, as the situation is studied by me, the continued presence of your local group is retarding the necessary remodeling."

"Is it not possible for the local WPB to expedite plans for moving and make required adjustments from the new location?"

"Understand that new space is available when local WPB makes up its mind as to how much space it will need. It is most important that action by your agency be expedited at once."

Congress Urged To Turn Clocks Back

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—Rep. Brown (D.) of Georgia, proposed today the nation turn its clocks back Sept. 30.

The Georgian had ready for the opening session of the House a resolution to repeal the January, 1942, act by which the country adopted Daylight Saving Time.

ABC License Upsets Listed

In a determined fight to obtain "home rule" for Boston, members of the Boston Licensing Board today sternly rebuked the State Alcoholic Beverages Commission for its action in granting liquor licenses and transfers turned down by the local board.

Overrulings were cited in a number of spots the Boston board had refused because the locations were too near churches, libraries, baby clinics and schools. Pleas of clergymen and representatives of civic organizations were ignored.

"The ABC has used extremely poor judgment in many of their recent actions," it was stated by Miss Mary E. Driscoll, chairman of the Boston board, and by Walter Meins, a fellow board member.

"If local boards are not able to make decisions there is no excuse for having such boards," the two members said.

"We in Boston know the local situation and can hear the protests of clergymen, while the men at the State House seem to act arbitrarily without any regard for local conditions. We have got to insist that the granting of licenses be controlled by residents of Boston and not by men who may come from any part of the state."

"If we can't make decisions, it's time for us to get out."

The two Boston board members detailed for reporters a number of cases in which they held hearings and turned down petitions for a liquor license transfer because they believed it against the public good of the particular neighborhood.

One of the transfers cited was the state's approval of a shift of Wallen's Tavern from 380 West Broadway, South Boston, to 490 East Broadway, South Boston. It marked at least the fifth time the local board recently had been overruled.

In this case, according to Miss Driscoll and Meins, they turned down the applications after hearing protests from Capt. Robert Lynch of the South Boston station, who said the site was too near churches, and the following pastors: the Rev. Arthur J. Gibbons of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Rev. F. M. Rathbone of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Rev. Thomas McAnastie of the Phillips Congregational Church, as well as residents of the district.

Another transfer drawing the ire of the local members was one approved for John A. Conway and Claire C. Conway, permitting them to move from 61 Calumet st., Roxbury, to 566 Columbia rd., Dorchester.

This site, they said, had been protested before them by the Rev. Clarence Dunham, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church of that neighborhood.

Another chosen for comment was a transfer to Codman sq., granted Reddy & Murphy, declared to be about 500 feet from the Old White Congregational Church. Protests came from the Rev. W. L. Hamer of the Stoughton st. Baptist Church, the Rev. Henry Elenburg of St. Mary's Episcopal Church and Walter E. Cobb, secretary of the Upham's Corner Improvement Ass'n. It was stated that a branch of the Boston Public Library and a baby clinic were situated nearby.

Boston lost the right to rule supreme on such matters through an act of the 1943 Legislature. All liquor license changes in Boston now are so-called transfers, since there have been no new liquor licenses available since the quota was filled several years ago.

Infantile Delays Nahant Schools

A new case of infantile paralysis on the eve of the opening of the Nahant schools today brought a one-week postponement on orders of the board of selectmen.

The announcement was made over the radio this morning even as 350 youngsters were preparing to leave home for school. Closed for the one-week period are nine grammar grades and one kindergarten class.

Two cases of polio previously had been reported and the third, reported only yesterday, caused officials to act just before the 8:30 a. m. scheduled opening.

Russell and Benton Named to State Dept.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—President Truman today nominated Donald S. Russell of Chicago and William Benton of Southport, Ct., as assistant secretaries of state.

At the same time, he sent to the Senate the nomination of Benjamin V. Cohen as counselor of the State Department.

OFF TO SCHOOL—The finishing touches on her hairdo are given Dorothy DeVincenzi, 6, before she leaves for St. Clement's School, Somerville, today by her sister, Betty, at their Harvard st., Medford, home. Thousands of Greater Boston children return to classes today.

Gunman Shoots Racketeer At East Boston Cafe Bar

With Joseph Barresi, 35-year-old bookie and holdup man, dying at City Hospital, authorities today sought to link his shooting with a gangland murder five weeks ago in Lynn and a holdup murder at Plaistow, N. H.

Barresi, whose record shows 43 arrests since 1929, was shot in the back as he sipped a midnight nightclub at the East Boston Canteen, Chelsea St., East Boston.

JOSEPH BARRIESI

His attacker sauntered calmly to the street, tossed his gun into a nearby alley and vanished. Frightened patrons made no move to halt him.

The victim has but a slight chance to recover according to doctors at City Hospital. A single .38-caliber bullet lodged in his spine, paralyzing his body and speech.

The shooting climaxed a series of holdups in the Boston-Revere-Lynn area and inspectors already are convinced the 25-year-old weapon used to fell Barresi is the same which took the life of Robert "Tex" Williams, 19, discharged marine.

Williams' body was found

Army Dad Hopes Doctors Can Still Save Doomed Son

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Sept. 5—Reunited with his doomed 8-year-old son, Jerry, former Army Sgt. Frank Wrinn prepared today to face as grim a battle as any he fought during his service in Europe.

Both Wrinn and his wife, while acknowledging slight hope, are determined to fight together to the very end to save the life of their son, victim of muscular dystrophy—the slow, creeping paralysis which killed Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees.

"Things could be worse," Wrinn said today. "In the war, when a man got it, he was a goner in a few seconds. Doctors say that Jerry may live for four more years. Maybe scientists—like the men who invented the atomic bomb—can find something during that time which will save my poor kid."

He and his wife are considering the offers of several specialists who have offered aid although admitting they cannot guarantee a cure.

"At least I know Jerry has no pain," his mother said. "The worst pain is what I see in my husband's eyes. But we've all learned how to fight in these last few years. Now we're together again and we'll fight together."

Winner of the Purple Heart and discharged only a few days ago from the Army, Wrinn rushed here by plane when he first learned of his son's ailment.

The ailing boy's eyes sparkled for the first time in days when reunited with his father. They romped together for hours—just like any father and son—with the father hiding behind a smile the grim knowledge of the boy's doom.

Happiest moment for the stricken boy was when his father produced a German helmet he had brought back from Europe for him and promised to start tomorrow to teach him how to be a soldier.

"We're getting re-acquainted all over again," Wrinn said after he had tucked the boy into bed. "And I'm falling in love with my wife all over again."

Meanwhile, offers of hope and help continued to pour in to the reunited family.

Carl Jackson, 43, of Miami, a victim of the disease, offered himself as a guinea pig in hope of saving the boy.

Meat Slaughter Quotas to Go

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (INS)—An agriculture department spokesman disclosed today unlimited slaughtering may be permitted soon to increase meat supplies for the fall.

Gayle G. Armstrong, special assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, told the House small business committee he planned to discuss with OPA the removal of quotas on meat slaughtering.

"We think we're going to have plenty of meat this fall," he declared.

Home Sentence For Boy Splurger

"When you're 17, your best girl is your mother and will be for several years. You go home to her and help her out."

With that advice, Municipal Judge Jennie L. Barron today imposed a four months suspended jail term on John Considine, 17, of East Brookline st., South End, on a charge of stealing bedclothing from a Tremont st., South End, rooming house.

Ordering Considine to make restitution of $21.50 to Robert Grabowski, the landlord, Judge Barron told him she was "giving you a chance." She also placed him on probation for two years. Police testified the youth, earning $55 a week in a South Boston sugar refinery, gave a 21-year-old girl $40 of his pay after running away from home in June.

Rattler Rites For Preacher Snake Victim

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 5 (AP)—Snake-handling rites were planned today for the funeral of a Tennessee lay preacher, victim of a snake bite, as Virginia authorities also sought the cause of death of a minister's wife bitten by a snake at a ritual.

Lewis F. Ford, 32-year-old father of three children, died Monday night after being bitten by a three-foot rattlesnake as a religious service at the near-by Dolly Pond Church of God, of which he was lay preacher.

Mrs. Roscoe Ford said her husband had told her the day before he died that "If I die, I want them to handle snakes at my funeral." She said she would call on members of her husband's faith to comply with the request.

Meanwhile, authorities at Wise, Va., sought to determine whether the wife of the Rev. H. O. Kirk died as result of a snake bite or of child birth.

Mrs. Kirk, bitten at a demonstration Saturday, died soon after giving birth to a child Monday. The child died a few minutes after birth.

Dr. G. T. Foust said Mrs. Kirk died from a rattlesnake bite, and the child from premature birth.

W. L. Ford said his son, a muscular truck driver, was bitten as he removed a snake from a box. He died painfully about an hour later surrounded by praying members of his sect.

DDT 'Bombs' $4

IMPORTANT FACTS FOR
SINUS SUFFERERS

In New England about one out of five have a "germ" disease referred to as Sinus Trouble!

Nine out of ten so affected believe that because of absence of pain, it is merely Catarrh and needs no relief.

More bodily ailments can be traced to Sinus Trouble than to any other single malady.

Doctors claim that over 50% of Arthritis is caused by Sinus Trouble. The lining of the heart may become involved. The kidneys may be attacked. Deafness and middle ear infection are common, necessitating mastoid operations. Moreover, there is apt to be a general debility with a lack of vital energy, in addition to frequent head colds.

REMOVE THE CAUSE AND YOU REMOVE THE TROUBLE. We have records to prove that this can be done! Treatments can be taken without discomfort, are moderately priced, and administered under a doctor's direction.

Navy Man's Only Coat Stolen

Like most Navy men coming home on leave, Ens. Walter Smith, of Roslindale, traveled light, wearing only his Navy gray uniform.
So the thief who took his uniform coat and a table radio from his parked auto in Stuart st. Monday night has left him in a bad way.

Smith can move around all right in the day time without trouble, but he's strictly out of luck on these cool evenings and is that anything that should happen to a sailor home on a brief leave?

He's willing to write off the radio as a dead loss just as long as he can get back the only coat he has with him.

He's hopeful the thief will see this and mail back the coat or see that it reaches him at 193 Belgrade ave., Roslindale. No questions asked, either.

This Is News--Spuds to Maine!

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—The Agriculture Department has purchased more than 1000 carloads of potatoes in New Jersey and Long Island at $2.20 a hundredweight and shipped them to Maine where they were sold to starch factories at 30 cents a hundred.

Sen. Brewster (R.) of Maine made this known today. He said the purchases were made up to Aug. 30 under the department's mutual assistance program. The Senator added the program carried on in New Jersey and Long Island will help Maine and other northern states when they begin shipping potatoes into the markets in large quantities, probably within two weeks.

The purchase program, Brewster said, is similar to the department's former relief program in Maine when local overproduction was drained off to protect local markets and the oncoming of late state production.

Hitler Piker In Gifts to Eva

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Sept. 5 (AP)—Arthur Kanneberg, chief buyer of Hitler's personal necessities from 1932 to 1945, said today the Fuehrer liked to play Santa Claus but was a piker in his gifts to his girl-friend, Eva Braun.

Kanneberg and his wife, Hitler's housekeeper, are being questioned in an internment camp here.

Kanneberg said Hitler liked to poke around in the kitchen and help prepare meals for his lavish parties and that he doted on brewing his own tea from native plants.

"I did all of Hitler's buying—his many thousands of Christmas parcels as well as the household needs," Kanneberg said, "and I know he never gave his sweetheart, Eva Braun, more than a simple jewel."

Shep Got It Back

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP)—J. Shepard Bingham almost said "no" when police asked him yesterday whether he had lost his watch.

Then he remembered he had, about 20 years ago. It was either in New Haven, Ct., or Flushing, N. Y.

"Well, we've found it for you," said the man who phoned from police headquarters.

Here's how it happened: Cleveland police arrested a man who had a watch with this inscription: "Presented to Shep Bingham by his friends in honor of his election as captain of the Yale varsity football team, 1924."

They found Shep through the Yale Alumni Society.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

With sudden changes in War Dept. plans, due to the ending of hostilities, more effective point discharge plans and rapid demobilization directives being placed in operation, many questions submitted by readers in recent weeks cannot be currently answered by this column.

Overseas veterans, especially in the European Theater of Operations, eligible for discharge will be returned, leaving respective outfits behind. Orders for divisions and regiments are being revised with only units marked for occupation duty remaining until volunteer replacements are assigned. Thousands of troops scheduled for the Pacific are being re-deployed and only upon arrival at U. S. ports are these units made public. However, in as many cases as possible, questions submitted regarding returning heroes will be answered if such information is made available through official channels.

(Ed. Note: Appearing on another page of this newspaper the column entitled "The Boys Come Back," lists the arrivals and scheduled arrivals at various U. S. ports of returning units. Watch this daily column for the scheduled arrival of unit interested in.)

Q—What Infantry Divisions are not scheduled to return this year? L. D. Weymouth.

A—The 42d, 65th, 66th, 68th, 70th, 71st, 75th, 76th, 84th, 94th, 100th and 103d Infantry Divisions are listed as not returning this year according to latest War Dept. reports.

Q—I was a member of the Army reserves and was called to active duty in February, 1941, and relieved October same year. Several months later received honorable discharge due to dependency. Having lived in Massachusetts before being called to active duty, am I entitled to the state bonus? How about mustering-out pay and other benefits? W. G., Exeter, N. H.

A—If you were a legal resident of Massachusetts six months prior to being called to active duty and your entry back into service was credited to this state, entitled to apply for bonus. Not eligible for mustering-out pay because service must have been on or after Dec. 7, 1941. You are entitled to benefits under the GI Bill, having served 90 or more days on active duty since Sept. 16, 1940.

(Mrs. E. M., Beverly: Regarding state bonus question suggest you write State Treasurer, Bonus Division, 15 Ashburton pl., Boston 8, Mass.)

Q—Is there a Retirement Bill for the Navy, regarding slightly disabled sailor, who has about 14 years' service? They claim he is about 10 per cent disabled and shipped over on a waiver. He does not wish compensation but retirement pay. A. S. R., Boston.

A—There is a Retirement Bill for enlisted men in service following 16 years' active duty. Also a 20-year and 30-year retirement. Apparently person you are interested in was receiving 10 per cent disability from Vets Administration. Following his discharge he may be reinstated for that compensation but would think it advisable to remain in service until at least 16 years are completed.

Q—My husband was discharged from the Army with a "Blue" discharge, June, 1943. Is he eligible for State bonus. Also where can he receive copy of discharge as he destroyed his original? K. P., So. Boston.

A—Eligible for State bonus. Write Adjutant General's Office, Bureau of Records, War Dept., Wash., D. C., for copy of discharge. Must have neck in order to apply for bonus.

Q—My husband is an officer and has been returned to this country after 2½ years overseas. He has cut my allotment to $125 for myself and two minor children. I have a heavy mortgage on my home which we took on before he went into the service and I cannot possibly pay all expenses on this income. He is a major and I know he can afford to pay more than that for the support of his family. Is there any way in which he can be forced to increase the $125? N. S., Ayer.

A—There is no set scale of payments which an officer is obliged to meet in the matter of supporting his family; when he will not voluntarily accept his responsibility in this respect the only recourse is to write to his commanding officer, giving full details as to expenses, income, number of dependents, etc. It is not necessary to have the commanding officer's name; simply use the title and the name address as you have for your husband.

Record Exports Seen for U. S.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (AP)—Eugene P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade Council, disclosed today America's export trade in the next two or three years will exceed anything known before the war, and in five years may exceed by from three to four billion the $5,250,000 level of 1939.

Initial spurt will be due to the pent-up demand for American goods, ample funds stored by Latin-American countries, and international credits, largely supplied by the American taxpayer, he said.

Hub Coast Guard TR's Honored

Honoring the 4000 Greater Boston members of the Coast Guard Temporary Reserve for their voluntary service during World War II, R. Adm. W. N. Derby, district Coast Guard officer, today presented citations and security shields of honor to the corps in a ceremony at Constitution Base.

Flotilla commanders received the awards on behalf of their units, which patrolled the harbor, guarded docks, piers and bridges, and operated signal towers.

In making the presentations, Adm. Derby pointed out the men served without pay and released many regulars for duty overseas.

The TR's will be disbanded within 30 days, Adm. Derby announced. He urged all members to join the Coast Guard League to continue the association of their units with the Coast Guard.

The admiral said new chapters of the league are being organized and all temporary reservists are eligible for membership.

The man's companion escaped with the other tray of pens, valued at $270, is being sought.

clumsy saber strokes to the cheers of the Japanese troops.

Another note, dated March 10, 1945, protested the treatment of American war prisoners who were on a ship torpedoed off Mindanao while being removed from the Philippines to other prison camps.

The notes also protested the treatment of 650 prisoners held at Lasang airfield in the Philippines, a known military installation on which they were forced to work.

At this camp, the note said, corporal punishment of the utmost severity was inflicted on slight provocation.

"Upon one occasion Lt. Hosida forced prisoners to kneel for a long period on the sharp edge of railroad tracks in such a position that most of the weight of their bodies was carried by their shins," the protest said.

"Afterward, the men were compelled to run barefooted on sharp coral gravel for several kilometers. On other occasions, individual prisoners returned to camp covered with blood as a result of having been beaten and kicked by Lt. Hosimoto."

The protest on the treatment of prisoners on the torpedoed Jap prison ship related how the men were crowded into holes where they could not lie down, with air cut off and insufficient drinking water provided.

It asserted the Japs failed to provide safety equipment and recited that after the vessel was torpedoed the same Lt. Hosimoto ordered prisoners swimming in the sea to be fired upon and had his men throw grenades on those trapped in the holes.

Twenty-nine prisoners, later recaptured from the sea, were shot and thrown back.

A further protest, dated April

Jap Torturers Face War Crime Trials

By MURLIN SPENCER
YOKOHAMA, Sept. 5 (AP)—Information received from prisoners of war which may be used in war crime trials against Japanese will be delivered to Gen. MacArthur's headquarters for court-martial, Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, Eighth Army commander, said today.

At the same time he disclosed that the Eighth Army had been assigned to liberate all prisoners both in its area of northern Honshu and in the southern areas which cover all Japanese home islands and Formosa, although the Chinese will occupy Formosa.

Pilot Officer Geoffrey Raoul Lempiere of the Australian air force, captured on Rabaul in January, 1942, prepared a dossier against certain Japanese officers at the Ashio camp, 90 miles from Yokohama.

Predicts Postwar Rush to Wed

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (AP)—Although the war years produced hasty marriages, "double-quick" weddings can be expected now the war is over, Dr. Ernest W. Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, said today.

"There will be a marked tendency toward hasty union," he said in an interview. "Marriages will take place on short acquaintance, courtship and engagement, since so many young people will wish to make up what they have missed of marital bliss because of its enforced postponement during the war."

"AND SO, My Fellow Countrymen, today I report to you that your sons and daughters have served you well and faithfully with the calm, deliberate, determined fighting spirit of the American soldier and sailor. Based upon a tradition of historical trait, as against fanaticism of an enemy supported only by mythological fiction, their spiritual strength and power has brought us through to victory. They are homeward bound—take care of them."—General Douglas MacArthur, in speech to people of the United States, following Japanese Surrender Aboard U. S. S. Missouri, September 2, 1945.

'WORK-STUDY'

IN NEW YORK CITY, where the "work-study" plan of education has been in successful use for several years, the Board of Education recently made a survey to determine anew from the pupils themselves how and why it benefits them.

The "work-study" plan is one in which the student attends formal classes part of the time, learning the theory of a vocation along with the essentials of a general education, and has a job the rest of the time in some private establishment in the same line.

The pupil "learns while he earns," acquiring skill and experience at his job while improving his mind in the classroom.

In a large number of instances, the "work-study" job becomes permanent following graduation from school, with no interval of youthful and often unguided job-hunting.

The New York pupils were asked:

"Why did you join this course?"

Seventy-one per cent replied that they had chosen the "co-operative education" program—as it is also called—because they wanted the opportunity to apply practically the technical training gained in school; because they felt assured of a better post-school position than if they lacked "work-study" training; and because they would be better equipped to succeed in their chosen life-work.

That in itself describes the "work-study" plan.

Sixteen per cent of the pupils added that they had to work in order to attend school, and "work-study" was a solution of that problem.

Almost all the pupils reported that they liked their preparatory jobs: For a few, "work-study" had been a means of ascertaining in school years at least one line of activity which they might have undertaken as adults and in which they would not be contented.

These young folk also reported that the combined shop and school experience was a means of developing "personality and character," of learning how to "get along" among people of various backgrounds and ages, and of acquiring a "sense of responsibility."

Quite evidently, therefore, "work-study" is a method of training in citizenship, along with its other pedagogical merits.

The School Department of New York City has served its own community well in providing "work-study" education as a part of its extensive curricula.

It is saving the country well in letting other communities, particularly those in Massachusetts and New England, know that the plan is successful in operation and of demonstrable high public value.

CHALLENGE

THE GIANT Queen Elizabeth, carrying 14,860 American veterans of the European War, has once more reached the New York port of embarkation.

This British vessel will always inspire much admiration and no little envy whenever she touches our shores.

In her our people will see a challenge to their pride and patriotism.

We built the greatest ships for war. We manned them with the finest lads who ever sailed the seas.

Why can't we do as much for peace? When a vessel bigger than the Queen Elizabeth is designed and constructed, it should be an AMERICAN vessel.

ARE you over nine or under 90? Can you hold your own in expressing justified indignation? Can you give voice to a rebel yell? If so, you are eligible to join the Young Rebels! So-called object of which is to conduct bitter campaign against things and people that are not what they ought to be. For example, take the Young Rebels Bitter Campaign No. 98872, which is directed against loud radio players. Whenever a young Rebel is harassed by a loud radio player he cuts loose with a yell of protest as loud as that of Joe E. Brown. More details on the workings and bitter campaigns of this great organization will be forthcoming in an early issue.

MULES & MEN: A California college professor suing for divorce charged his wife with 87 acts of cruelty. That's a lot of acts of cruelty. A detailed description of these alleged acts of cruelty was not given in the newspaper account of the proceedings. However, I am trying to get the detailed list. Would like to have it for the cruelty to husbands file of our Mules & Men Department.

But, my dear sir, you must keep in mind that right now there are two million more women than men in the British Isles. Naturally women who have been fortunate enough to secure husbands must cater to the selfish brutes."

FICKLE PUP: A Washington, D. C. resident sued a butcher for alienating the affections of a dog. Seems the butcher was in the habit of tossing the pup some choice bits of meat and occasionally presented him with an elegant roast beef bone. The owner of the dog soon found it impossible to keep his pet at home. No sooner was the animal let loose than he made for the butcher shop at top speed. Nor would the pup come away from the butcher's place when his master called him. Also, when the dog was kept home away from the butcher by his master he barked and whined incessantly. Hence the dog's owner considered the affections of his pet had been alienated. So he sued the butcher for $300. At last reports the dog was still standing in front of the butcher shop lovingly and hopefully gazing at the butcher.

LITERARY LADIES: The feminine novelists are getting much better looking but novels by females are far from what they used to be in literary quality. Could it be that some of the editors are becoming a little too susceptible to feminine charm and are thus persuaded to publish novels they should not? Those good-looking literary ladies, usually born under the sign of Libra, are very clever handlers of impressionable men.

PEANUT BUTTER: "Will Lauren Bacall turn out to be peanut butter?" writes Moore Young of the London, Eng. Dispatch.

"That's what I asked myself after seeing the much publicized beauty in her first film. I'll explain about the peanut butter. When I first tried the stuff and the unusual refreshing taste delighted me. I ate it with relish every time I could get hold of it. Then I suddenly tired of it—now I hardly ever touch it. I still enjoy lobster, filet mignon and strawberries but I don't care for peanut butter. The strange unusual taste no longer excites my palate. So I ask you: Lauren Bacall turn out to be peanut butter? Veronica Lake said. She arrived with the blonde mane, the one-eyed slance and gravelly voice to make audiences sit up and wince. But the novelty has worn off. Veronica the starlet is no longer a sensation."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—Can they do that to me? Can't I even report anybody to anybody? This New Deal—Listen what they do me:

Six months ago, anyway, maybe seven or eight, it comes to me to see a party under the bridge at midnight so down I go and he gives a low, musical bird-call, which is our agreed signal, so I flap the left ear counter-clockwise, which is for his recognition and then we go behind a pillar and he whispers: "Jimmy Roosevelt borrowed $50,000 from Joe Schenck, the moving picture fellow, on a six months note, in Feb., 1940."

With that he struck a match like to light a cigaret and it gave off an enormous cloud of red and green striped smoke and he vanished and my work began.

I called up people long distance and short distance. I wrote letters to people. I went down to Washington and asked people. I went down to the U. S. D. A.'s office in New York and saw Boris Kostelanetz, the kid brother of Andre, the musician, because Boris handled those income tax trials of Joe Schenck and the cases of Willie Bioff and George Browne and the six Chicago members of the Movie union. I asked a friend down Wall Street did he know him and he didn't, but he said why didn't I just bally up the manager of the National City Bank on 42nd st. and pretend like I had a gun in my pocket and make him let me see the note.

Then I broke a whole armful of high-priority cold chisels (see expense account) trying to get the vault one night. I mean the wrong vault.

Here and there I would get a nod of encouragement, but it just wouldn't break.

FINALLY, I thought of calling up Jimmy, himself, because that time when he told his version of his insurance business for a magazine piece, the title was "I'm Glad You Asked Me" and maybe he would come clean.

But I had tried that with his brother, Elliott, when I was working on the $200,000 deal with John Hartford of the A. & P. Stores, and Elliott wouldn't react, although, the other day, when the Treasury gave out the report to the House Ways and Means Committee, confirming the piece, he put up a holler to be heard.

So I decided to by-pass Jimmy until I had the facts in hand and not take a chance of scaring a hen off the nest. Anyway, it seems that unlike my old man who, in a historic newspaper exploit years ago, got a picture of a pretty girl that no other reporter could get in weeks of house-prowling, just by ringing the doorbell and asking for it, I always have to do things the hard way.

So I kept on collecting telephone numbers, cigaret butts and old gum-wrappers which I filed away in the bomb-proof vault where I keep my clues, and kept on leaving cover-up phone calls alone, giving my name as "Michy" for people, working my wonderful brain to the very bone when, all of a sudden, the phone she gave one of those whatmy rings like she do when she got very expensive long distance coming up.

"Hello," I exclaimed, and it turned out to be a friend in Hollywood, so he said: "Spelvin, this is Mack, and I hear you are after that Jimmy Roosevelt note thing, so if you are, well, I know Joe Schenck real well and I think he would rather give it to you right than maybe you should get it balled up, so if you want me to I will ask him and see."

So, very politely, Mr. Schenck, who ought to have a grudge against me the way I done in the Bioff-Browne thing which certainly didn't contribute to his happiness, well he said he didn't bear me any grudge and yes, on Feb. 9, 1940, Jimmy did borrow $50,000 from him on a six-months' personal note for use in Jimmy's moving picture business and Mr. Schenck hung it up in the National City Bank at 41st and Broadway, not the 42nd street branch, and it went to default on the due date and he paid it himself.

Then he talked along and the more he talked the more interest and principal Jimmy was paying him back, like $1011.11, for interest, on Aug. 1, 1940, and another thousand on Aug. 5, 1941, and $10,000 on the principal and another thousand interest on Feb. 3, 1942, and $5500 more principal on March 10, 1942, and $33,500 on June 24 and finally cleaned it up on July 31, 1942, principal and interest, in full, to the cent.

To be sure, Mr. Schenck had his guimp in the wringer with the Internal Revenue people at the time when the loach was made and you may make what you will of that if you feel sinister, but the young fellow did pick up his tab and I can't agree that it was any special favor from the New Deal to Mr. Schenck, in return for this loan, to give him a jail sentence and a record on the tax charges.

"Ask her if she's got twenty-six girl friends."

Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5—Capt. Ronald Reagan, one of the "top drawer" Warner stars, was one of the first of the Hollywood actors to answer Uncle Sam's call. Ronald could never go overseas because of his eyesight, which is very bad, but he did a notable job at Ft. Roach.

He has served since the very beginning of the war and now will get his release any day. If he does, his first picture will be "Will Rogers" with Mike Curtiz directing and Jerry Wald producing. You're surprised, I know, but Joel McCrea, I have known for some time, isn't going to do the Rogers part. I was told Jimmy, Will's son, had made a very successful test with Joan Leslie. But when Reagan gets out Jack Warner wants something important to bring him back and, well, with Mike Curtiz directing this would be it.

WOULDN'T IT be something if Hal Wallis is successful in putting Tallulah Bankhead and Liz Scott as the mother and daughter in the new book he has bought, "Down Town"? Miss S., you remember, was Miss T.'s understudy a couple years ago in "Skin of Your Teeth" and at that time Liz could hardly be expected to think she would ever co-star with the one and only Tallulah. "Desert Town," by Ramona Stewart will be serialized in a national magazine before book publication. It's the story of a mother who dominates the shady concessions in a desert town, but who tries to bring her daughter up as a lady—only it doesn't take.

I HAVE SELDOM read a continued story that has held my interest so completely as the "Insuspected" by Charlotte Armstrong, which is running in one of the current magazines. I can hardly wait to see what happens to Grandie, the arch villain, who must be brought to justice. Well, I imagine I will know soon and the murders will be solved. Jack Warner bought the story for Rob Alda. I suppose Alda will play the pseudo husband of the heroine. We'll see whether Alda really has talent or whether it was only his resemblance to George Gershwin in "Rhapsody in Blue" that put him on the upbeat as an actor.

BILL POWELL once told me he didn't like live or jam sessions. Lot of good that does him in his next "Thin Man" movie at M-G-M with Myrna Loy. The plot centers around the murder of a swing musician and Myrna and Bill wander from one jam session to another, trying to catch the musical villain! Actors are always having to overcome these little complexes. Jeanne Crain told me if there is one thing she hates it is a roller coaster, and she had to ride one 18 times in "State Fair." "I obliged them by fainting after every trip," she said.

THIS COLUMN is an revival or, in plain English, farwell for a few weeks. I'm going on vacation, away from telephones, scoops and all excitement. I'll come home a new woman. You'll see! Meanwhile, I am leaving this column in very competent hands. Dorothy Manners, who has been on my staff 11 years, will tell you all the Hollywood happenings. So, until the last week in September—hail and farewell!

YOU BEGIN to realize the war is really over when press copy comes from Paris about movies. Lucette Caron, who is representing Sol Lesser in Paris, says the French government has lent Marie Allieret, the director of "Stage Door Canteen" in Paris, Hitler's personal black open Mercedes and Marshal Petain's dark blue Renault.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—With the revival of interest in sport I would like to submit an account of a stirring baseball game which took place in Guam. It was furnished to me by an officer attached to Admiral Nimitz' outfit.

Now if you will hit your neighbor over the head with a pop bottle, and make yourself sick on peanuts to get into the baseball mood, you may enjoy the account, which follows:

"Press censors and war correspondents at this advance headquarters were recovering slowly today from the effects of the war's most brutal conflicts, a softball game on Geiger Field late yesterday afternoon which the wielders of the red pencil and shears (the censors) won by a score of 22 to 13.

"The game went the full regulation route of seven innings over the melancholy protests of Mac R. Johnson, manager for the newspapermen, who in a moment of brilliant inspiration suggested at the end of the fifth inning that the game be called in favor of a meeting at the Officers' Club bar.

"This happened to be the only time in the game when the war correspondents were in the lead. The censors replied to Johnson's suggestion with Bronx cheers and resumed the slaughter, quickly going into the lead and never again being headed."

"JOE GORDON, erstwhile mighty slugger of the New York Yankees and now a member of the B-29 ground forces, stepped to bat for the correspondents in the third inning. Immediately challenged as a stranger and possible ringer by the censors, he nevertheless was permitted to take one swing at the ball, which he lifted in a terrific wallop that would have been impressive even in the stadium north of Manhattan.

"He was quickly disqualified and benched and his identity revealed. He had been flown in from Saipan for the occasion and, as the censors admitted, is probably a good fellow but not a war correspondent.

Big League standards in the early innings. Censors, second time at bat, walked or drove in five runs, and the correspondents replied with an equal number in their half of the inning.

"The censors, who had previously succeeded in stopping almost anything offered by war correspondents throughout the war, found themselves in difficulty on low grounders and pop flies that suddenly became base hits.

"Com. Murray Ward, fleet chief censor, who gave his name to the censors' Merry Murray Mayday line, played third base, brought in several runs with stellar hitting, and made a sensational slide into second base which is still being talked about in official circles.

"LT. HANK 'BEANBALL' CONNORS, former New York City Hall reporter, pitched the full seven innings for the censors, sometimes amid disheartening circumstances, and was caught enthusiastically and sometimes mistrustfully by Lt. Gus (Marine). Knowles, formerly of Shreveport, La.

"Bill Marlen, Australian newspaperman, was among a half-dozen or more who took the mound for the war correspondents, and tried with indifferent success to incorporate the best qualities of bowls and cricket into his softball technique.

"Among others who entered the box for short stints were Larry Tighe of the American Broadcasting Company, John Henry of International News Service, Bill Lawrence, Pepper Martin (not the original) and Morris Landberg. George McWilliams, of International News Service, caught these pitchers under difficult and sometimes harrowing conditions.

"The game was umpired by Mike Quins, an enlisted man furnished by the Cinpac Athletic Office for the occasion. He was the center of some heated arguments, but escaped with a whole skin."

GOING TO MIAMI? . . . (With the great majority, we might say that we're not either . . .) But it may be interesting generally, to consider this up-to-date review of the housing situation in the North American tropics . . .

The housing scarcity sounds unreal—it is so acute for this fall and winter . . . Southwest Miami, one of the best sections of the city, no rentals of houses or apartments are listed at this time.

IN MIAMI SPRINGS, near Hialeah, a prominent horseman seeking quarters for the entire winter was informed today that he could rent a one bedroom apartment—nothing else . . . It would be held as long as an airmail special delivery letter containing the inquirer's check for the full amount of the season's rental would require normally to reach Florida . . . Two of the finest hotels in Miami Beach are taking reservations until Dec. 20 only.

IN CORAL GABLES, eight miles distant from Miami, exactly two rentals were available . . . One was a four-bedroom house and the rental from Dec. 1 to May 1 was $3500 . . . (No swimming pool) . . . Another house—two bedrooms and dinette—might be had for $250 from Jan. 1 to April 1 . . . GFA ceilings are in effect throughout the Miami sector, (presumably) too . . . Whether the situation has an underlying condition not explained to casual inquirers, we do not know.

LANDLORDS anticipating the ending of rent ceilings, may be holding their properties off the market until postwar developments take shape . . . One conclusion is inevitable . . . In spite of an expected business lag while reconversion takes place, canny property owners in the most popular part of Florida obviously see no decrease in demand for accommodations of all varieties and cost.

FRANCES FAYE ended her most successful Boston engagement at The Mayfair last night, but the piano-playing songstress of the nightclubs is lingering a little longer in Boston . . . Miss Faye is a baseball fan . . . She admires Lou Boudreau, injured manager of the Cleveland Indians, so greatly that Frances and her new husband are staying in town to greet him.

UNDER FRANCES' encouragement, Tommy Gerard, The Mayfair's bandleader, added considerably to his development as an entertainer . . . It should be said right now that even before Miss Faye arrived, Maestro Gerard was probably the most improved young man currently wielding a baton in Boston, and this verdict applies also to the good crew he is directing.

THE BROTHERS Dorsey, Tommy and Jimmy, are to co-star in a movie titled "My Brother Leads a Band" . . . Hollywood mazzina seems to have resolved a feud—and a bitter one, at that—which resulted the best of efforts of many earlier conciliators . . . Physicians say that sinus, hay fever and asthma sufferers will recall the past 10 days of torture.

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—When that Mississippi Bubble burst here and abroad in New Orleans at the turn of the century, it sent prisms all over the world . . . The country at large, especially that of the Crescent City, was slow to accept it . . . Europe got serious about hot ticks first, the Belgians and French wrote about it . . .

Dorothy Kilgallen a few years later longhair musicians here and abroad were willing to talk of Louis Armstrong in the same breath with De Bismarck . . . Jazz critics popped out full-blown from Yale and Harvard . . . Harry Ulanov was leaving Columbia with Benoni in his eyes, Leonard Foster came from England with 4-4 time in his soul, and Yip Harburg was getting ready to claim jazz as American . . . It got so many intellectuals at these attendant sets said right-o to jazz . . . Meantime, jazz musician, originally, perhaps, ignorant of what he was doing, became more articulate too . . . He liked music . . . He began to say so, and he showed, even as he was inancing other.

BRY LOU WILLIAMS, whose piano is as delicate as a net, liked to commune with Mussorgsky, his favorite being his "Serenade Interrompue" . . . Ed Armstrong, the first important female instrumentalist of the lusty newcomer, prefers Debussy's "E-Flat Minor Prelude and Fugue from 'The Well-Tempered Clavichord'" . . . Edmond Hall, the veteran New Orleans clarinetist, likes Beethoven's symphonies, too, enjoys improvising with the "Invention in A minor" . . . But the king of saxophonists, Coleman Hawkins, claims no favorites. The whole world of classical music delights, but it's solid, that's all. It's a good deal!

CLASSICAL COMPOSERS have let jazz influence them, too. Once on a tour to America, Maurice Ravel sat up all night in Chicago to hear Jimmy Noone back the problems of the licentious stick. Fascinated, the great Frenchman scribbled onto music manuscript paper some of the runs and trills Noone was creating. When he showed the stuff to Noone afterward, Noone declared any such browns. "I couldn't play all those notes even if I wanted," he swore.

WHEN THE FALL ROLLS AROUND, we all feel like making a new start in grooming, in keeping our rooms and wardrobes tidy and fresh, and in being a bit more feminine than we've been during the carefree summer days.

With this cooler weather, we tackle jobs like cleaning out dresser drawers and closets . . . laundering and packing away summer attire . . . getting our woolen blankets and clothes out into the air after a season of storage. And while we're about it, why not do it right and impart a lovely fragrance to our belongings?

Flower-fragrant sachets are older than our great-grandmothers. The scent of lavender clung to the linens that came out of many a trunk or chest long before glamor became a common word . . . and it really imparted the kind of glamor that lingers.

For a girl going away to school, too, a bottle of lovely sachet to be sprinkled among her undies and haskies and hung in little satin bags under her frocks, is a wise investment. It will first of all mark her as a young woman of good taste and breeding, and give her room and her things a charming personality.

Sachet has been a bit neglected in late years, but it has come back . . . and now that the clever cosmetics have put their talents to work on providing us with superior products, we find that this lovely, scented powder rubbed into the skin after bathing clings even longer and more subtly than a liquid perfume.

It costs only a fraction of what a small bottle of perfume, in comparable quality would cost. And it won't evaporate or spill, which is highly important to the young and giddy!

Write, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope, or call Liberty 4000, weekdays except Saturday before 5, for further information about this sachet bargain.

Earns Creator a Bow

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THIS WEEK sees the start of the big millinery season when every woman in her right mind gets into a fall hat, and preferably one that is new and smart in style.

For your consideration I recommend one very new and quite beautiful hat for a certain type of girl. This is the coronet tricorn, which is just what its name says it is—a tricorn that is also a coronet. Our sketch shows you.

Laddie Northridge, who created this hat, ought to take a bow, for it is a beauty. He makes it of black velvet and leaves it strikingly simple and uncluttered to produce the finest kind of millinery drama. The widow's peak that drips down at the front is an important point, and so is the little veil with one single black velvet beauty spot over the left cheekbone.

THE SMART YOUNG LADY entering school this fall will have a beautifully scented sachet bottle tucked into her trunk, and will sprinkle it among her sweaters and undies so that she carries with her a subtle fragrance at all times.

Quick Breads for Lunches

By MARTHA LEE

QUICK BREADS deserve special attention these days, with scores of lunch boxes marching off to school. A wide variety of quick breads means a wider variety of tasty sandwiches for the lunch box. They also mean simple-to-make sandwich fillings, as a flavorful quick bread makes elegant sandwiches with only softened margarine, or butter as sandwich spread.

Mother is especially eager to make quick breads sure to please Dad's noontime lunch as well as the youngsters', and two such satisfying quick breads are molasses lemon bread and apricot nut bread. Both of these good breads are as quick to make as they are quick to disappear. For sandwich makings, make these breads a day before slicing them into thin neat slices.

MOLASSES LEMON BREAD

1 egg
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup molasses
1/4 cup melted shortening
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
2 1/2 cups sifted enriched flour
1 tsp. soda
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 cup buttermilk or sour milk

Beat egg until light. Add sugar, molasses, melted shortening, and lemon rind. Sift together flour, soda, baking powder, salt, and cinnamon. Add to egg mixture alternately with buttermilk. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 1 hour. Makes 1 loaf, 4 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches.

Slices of molasses lemon bread may be spread with many tempting fillings. A few of these are softened cream cheese with a bit of raspberry jam, chopped cooked prunes with chopped nuts, and peanut butter mixed with orange marmalade.

Apricot nut bread is made delightfully moist and deliciously fragrant with cooked dried apricots. Their piquant flavor enhanced by a touch of tart lemon juices gives this bread its discriminating flavor. Bits of chopped nuts do their share to make this sugar-shy bread sweetly enjoyable for sweet sandwiches. Slices of apricot nut bread spread with honey-sweetened cream cheese make an excellent lunch box dessert.

APRICOT NUT BREAD

1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar

3/4 cup corn syrup
2 eggs, beaten
1/4 cup finely chopped cooked apricots
1 tsp. lemon juice
2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1/4 cup milk
1 cup chopped nuts

Cream together shortening and sugar until light and fluffy. Add syrup and beat well. Add eggs, mixing well. Fold in apricots and lemon juice. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Add chopped nuts. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 1 hour and 15 minutes. Makes 1 loaf.

BANANA BREAD

1 1/4 cups sifted enriched flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. baking soda
1/4 tsp. salt
1-3 cup shortening
2-3 cup sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
1 cup mashed, ripe bananas (3 to 3 1/2 bananas)

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Work shortening with a spoon until fluffy and creamy, then add sugar gradually while continuing to work with a spoon until light. Add eggs and beat well with a spoon. Add flour mixture alternately with the bananas, a small amount at a time, beating smooth with a spoon after each addition. Turn into a greased or oiled loaf pan of about 9x5x3 inches. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F. for 1 hour to 1 1/2 minutes, or until done. Half cup chopped walnuts, or 1 cup chopped dates may be added.

The Uncensored Story of Little Reinhardt Koenig

By AUSTEN LAKE

THE THIRD ARMY CENSORS wouldn't let me tell about Reinhardt Koenig, the jockey-sized German who helped capture the top Nazi political boss of Burgstadt. Nor would they let me radio how we hunted down a vicious war criminal at gun point. Because war correspondents weren't supposed to do such things. In fact, they said I could be discredited and sent home for that! So I didn't persist.

Until now the story of little Reinhardt, who resembles a mummified Hollywood comic but who had the heart of a lion, remains untold. This is it:

It was last April 14 and the Fourth Armored had spearheaded close to Czechoslovakia. A captain named "Fig" Newton and I were monkeying around the freshly captured town of Burgstadt in search of a rumored Nazi dog cache which we never found. So we were talking with a French libre who said the local Nazi headman was hiding somewhere close by—a particularly nasty guy named Tronja who sicked the Gestapo on people at his whim and thereby got very rich.

We were chewing the fat in my schoolboy French when a man little bigger than a horse jockey stepped up and said in impeccable English, "Can I be of any service?" He said he was Reinhardt Koenig and had formerly lived at 3 Montgomery st., Lawrence, where he married an American girl named Louise Tensh, sister of Ernest Tensh, a Lawrence feed dealer. Louise, a grave, latter-aged lady was there too, and she said worrisomely, "Oh, dear, I hope Reinhardt isn't getting himself into trouble"—which he was all right!

Tronja Had Some Red Cross Cigarettes

THE LITTLE MAN, WHOSE SKIN looked like a tight-drawn drum head, said his German father had died and left him a sizable legacy in Reichsmarks. So he'd come home just before the war to collect, intending to return to his Lawrence home. But the Nazis had beaten him to the money and wouldn't let him leave because he was native born. So he stayed, making a meager living by teaching English.

"Do you know where the Nazi Kreisleiter lives?" I asked, and Reinhardt said, "Tronja?" Yes I know and I will be glad to take you there. It would make him very happy, he said, because Tronja had thrown him in jail for a year—a very dirty jail with nothing much to eat. "Which is why," said Reinhardt, "I am so thin and have stomach ulcers."

So Reinhardt climbed into our jeep and Capt. Newton and I started out. The little guy was a bit fuzzy about locations at first, but finally he pointed a claw and said, "Here! This is where Tronja lives." So "Fig" and I drew our guns—mine a captured German Luger and his a U. S. .45 and walked into the court of a very lavish dwelling and rapped on the door. Reinhardt came along too!

After some delay the door opened a crack and an unshaven, frightened man peered out. "That's him," said Reinhardt. "Tronja!" demanded Capt. Newton. "Ich bin Tronja," said the frightened Kreisleiter who obviously expected a bullet in his belly and was quaking with fear. He looked anything but the arrogant body-master with life and death mastery over some million people. He was humble, meek and just plain scared.

So we went inside a luxuriously furnished mansion where, in his living room, he had a half-filled haversack of clothing and essentials for escape. There was also a Walther pistol (which I now have at home) and two packages of Chesterfield cigarettes, which obviously came from a U. S. Red Cross parcel intended for our American PWs in the nearby Stalag. In fact only that morning Lt. Col. Harold Cohen had discovered that some 20,000 such Red Cross parcels had been distributed by the Nazis to local civilians, and Cohen had issued a characteristic order: "If by noon today any article from an American Red Cross package is found in German civilian hands, the penalty will be severe." And "severe" is the proper word. Cohen wouldn't have hesitated to burn that person's house down. Indeed in an advanced spearhead like ours the law was what our commanders made it. And that law was usually rough!

Herr Tronja Gets His Just Due

SO I SAID TO KOENIG, "Ask Tronja where these cigarettes came from?" Tronja said sheepishly a townsman had given them to him. I asked, "Are these American Red Cross cigarettes?" and Tronja said he didn't know! Well, they were.

So we bundled Herr Tronja into our jeep and rolled to the Fourth Armored's PW stockade where a tough MP sergeant who used to box professionally in Minneapolis was in charge. He was a big, shaggy sergeant who took no guff from his prisoners and especially from SS troopers, whom he and his fellow MPs worked over very vigorously with their fists as occasion arose. The Armored MP's had witnessed too much Nazi dirty work since the Normandy breakthrough to have any scruples against fist violence from the arrogant Stutzstaffel.

So we unloaded Tronja and said, "This guy's a prize! He's the top Nazi politician who gave people a bad time." And the sergeant smacked a fist into a palm and gurgled with satisfaction, "Boy does' just da guys we loves to ketch." Then I showed him two packages of Chesterfields and said, "These are some of our Red Cross stuff that he had on him." And with that the sergeant's eyes lighted up with a red glow and he caught the ex-kreisleiter a roundhouse sock on the jaw that would have felled a rodeo steer. And I remember the slow grin of pleasure that swept over Reinhardt's parchment features, the first display of emotion he had thus far shown, and Reinhardt said, "That is good."

I don't know what finally happened to Tronja—if he ever survived to make the trip rearward for criminal trial. But a few days later Louise Koenig came in to report that Reinhardt was missing. He had disappeared, possibly a victim of Nazi underground. So, if Ernest Tensh of Lawrence has heard any word, I would be glad to know the postlude. We liked little Reinhardt and were about to make him temporary Burgomaster of the town.

By JACK CONWAY.

Despite attacks of asthma, sinus and hay fever, Ferriss has won 20 and lost only eight games this season. He has had the bad fortune to lose six of the last nine games; he has pitched which accounts for the attitude of a section of Boston fans toward his efforts.

Dave Ferriss

In Brooklyn, the fans cheer a player when he wins for the Bums, while they jeer at him when he makes the error that gives the game to the opposition. Leo Durocher, master showman, has fanned these waves of joy and hate into record breaking gate receipts. Durocher believes that when a club can fully capitalize the emotions of the public it can make the most money. Leo certainly has succeeded in doing so.

They do not think of the years Ferriss gave to the service of his country in the Air Corps. Their only thought was to see Ferriss elected to the Senate. When he disappointed them they permitted their feelings of anger and disappointment to sweep down over the ball park in the form of boos and jeers. I am quite confident that none of those persons who booed Ferriss would have had the courage to have carried on if they had been in the young pitcher's place and had been suffering from the same physical disabilities.

"Ferriss was suffering so much from an attack of asthma," said Flinnegan, "that Win Green worked over him for an hour to relieve the condition. When we

I hope Ferriss goes through with his plan to take special medical treatment for his condition. In these days of surgical and medical miracles, anything is possible. The doctors at least can give Ferriss relief so that he can pitch without so much physical strain.

Dempsey Silenced Boos

The boos changed to cheers in the third round when Dempsey, on the verge of a knockout in the second session, came back to stop the Frenchman. The fans admitted the way Dempsey fought back and scored his smashing victory. Later Dempsey made himself even more popular when he knocked out Luis Firpo. I wonder if the old Manassa Mauler's thoughts went back to the scene as he entered the ring to fight Carpentieri when he went ashore with the Coast Guard at Okinawa in World War II.

$27.50 Cost to Boo

"It cost that fellow $27.50 to get a ringside seat," said Sharkey to Johnny Buckley, "So it's all right with me."

When Sharkey returned from his USO trip to Africa and Italy, he dropped into the New York Garden to see about a bout. When introduced, he received the greatest ovation ever accorded to a former heavyweight champion. Maybe even the $27.50 customer of Sharkey's fighting days was among those who cheered him.

Injury to Boudreau Kills Indian Hopes

By HUCK FINNEGAN

If ever there was a one-man ball club, it is the Cleveland Indians who opened a five-game series against the Red Sox today with a double-header. That man, Lou Boudreau, had his right foot fractured in a collision with Dolph Camilli Aug. 13. That finished his ball club, hot at the time, as a pennant contender.

The Indians were hot at the time. Were in fact until a recent series with the Senators when they dropped six games in seven. And most of those games were lost in the infield.

Boudreau, is well known, is the manager-shortstop of the Indians. He's led the league shortstops in fielding ever since his debut in '40. He's made every A. L. all-star team since. And last year he led the league in batting.

He was on his way to another batting championship when he was injured. He was climbing rapidly while Cuccinello, Case, Stirrweiss and Co. were slipping. He had boosted his average to .307. His fielding was amazing. He had made only six errors in 95 games. He had lifted the club from seventh place into contention. Then the roof fell in.

"The breaks of the game," he philosophized this morning. "No, there's no chance for me to play again. I must wear this cast until Sept. 19, when X-rays are to be taken again. It would take me another week to get in shape. It can't be done."

Much as he hated to admit it, he didn't believe his fifth place club could make up the seven-game deficit.

"Injuries wrecked us," he said. "Ross was out for a month with a broken thumb; Bagby lost three weeks with a knee hurt when he was pitching great ball, and now Steve Gromek (16-game winner) lost two weeks. I don't know yet whether Bagby or Gromek can pitch here."

Boudreau thought all four first division clubs had a good chance at the flag. "How I'd love to be in there battling them," he sighed. "We always play better on the road than at home, and we'll be on the road practically the rest of the season."

Boudreau is wondering whether his abbreviated season will prevent him from leading the shortstops in fielding again

War Vet Toomey Lifts Eagles' Hopes

The appearance of Tuck Toomey at the opening practice session of Boston College's third informal eleven was more than enough to put a smile on Moody Sarno's face in spite of only 40 first-day candidates.

Toomey was an outstanding member of the 1941 team, alternating with All-America Fred Nautz at the center position. He has just returned to the Heights after more than three years service with the Army, looking as fit as ever. His presence in the Eagles' forward wall will contribute much to the success of the team.

If either Toomey or Captain George Donelar are switched to one of the guard positions and Bob Lawler continues in his guard post, the center of the Eagle line should be powerful. All three either threaten or surpass the 200-pound mark, and all three are six feet or more tall.

Don Currihan went right to work trying to develop a creditable pair of ends to flank this sturdy trio. Passing drills were the keynote of yesterday's practice, while Sarno lost no time in putting the backfield candidates through their paces.
